COMPLAINT

Through its attorneys, Plaintiffs Samsung Electronics America, Inc., Samsung Electronics Home Appliances America, LLC, and Samsung HVAC America, LLC allege and state as follows:

1. Plaintiffs bring this action to contest Defendants’ imposition and collection of certain duties on their merchandise imported from the People’s Republic of China pursuant to Section 301(b) of the Trade Act of 1974 (“Trade Act”), 19 U.S.C. § 2411(b). See Notice of Modification of Section 301 Action: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 83 Fed. Reg. 47,974 (U.S. Trade Rep. Sept. 21, 2018) (“List 3 Notice”); Notice of Modification of Section 301 Action: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 84 Fed.

Reg. 22,564 (U.S. Trade Rep. Aug. 20, 2019) (“List 4 Notice”).<sup>1</sup> Defendants’ imposition and collection of the List 3 and List 4A duties are inconsistent with the statute, violate the Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”), and are otherwise contrary to law.

2. Plaintiffs therefore request that this Court declare void ab initio Defendants’ imposition of the List 3 and List 4A duties and order Defendants to refund, with interest, the List 3 and List 4A duties that Plaintiffs have paid.

JURISDICTION

3. The Court has jurisdiction over this action contesting the imposition and collection of the duties at issue pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1581(i)(1)(B), conferring exclusive jurisdiction to this Court over any civil action against the United States, its agencies, or its officers, arising out of any law providing for “tariffs, duties, fees, or other taxes on the importation of merchandise for reasons other than the raising of revenue.”

PARTIES

4. Plaintiffs Samsung Electronics America, Inc., Samsung Electronics Home Appliances America, LLC, and Samsung HVAC America, LLC import consumer electronics, HVAC equipment, and parts for the manufacture of washing machines in the United States. Plaintiffs’ imports are subject to the additional ad valorem duties under List 3 and List 4A.

<sup>1</sup> The Office of the U.S. Trade Representative (“USTR”) refers to the duties contested in this action as “List 3” and “List 4,” in light of the fact that USTR imposed a series of successive duties allegedly in connection to the same “action” taken pursuant to Section 301(b) of the Trade Act. List 4A refers to duties imposed on September 1, 2019 pursuant to the List 4 Notice. List 4B refers to duties that were scheduled to be imposed on December 15, 2019 pursuant to the List 4 Notice. List 4B duties were never imposed. The series of duties imposed is further described in the Statement of Facts, infra.

5. Defendant United States of America has received and continues to receive the contested tariffs and is the statutory defendant under 5 U.S.C. § 702 and 28 U.S.C. § 1581(i)(1)(B).

6. The Office of the USTR is an executive agency of the United States charged with investigating a foreign country's trade practices under Section 301 of the Trade Act and implementing responses, subject to the direction of the President. USTR conducted the Section 301 investigation at issue and made numerous decisions regarding List 3 and List 4A.

7. Defendant Maria Pagan currently holds the position of Acting USTR and serves as the director of the Office of the USTR.

8. Defendant U.S. Customs & Border Protection ("CBP") is the agency that collects duties on imports. CBP collected payments made by Plaintiffs to account for the tariffs imposed by USTR under List 3 and List 4A.

9. Defendant Troy Miller is the Senior Official Performing the Duties of the Commissioner of CBP. In this capacity, he oversees CBP's collection of duties paid by the Plaintiffs pursuant to List 3 and List 4A.

STANDING

10. Plaintiffs are U.S. importers of products that are subject to the additional ad valorem duties imposed pursuant to List 3 and List 4A, and Plaintiffs have paid duties on these products.

11. Defendants' imposition and collection of these duties are unlawful. These duties, therefore, have affected adversely and aggrieved Plaintiffs within the meaning of the APA, 5 U.S.C. § 702. Accordingly, Plaintiffs have standing to commence this action. See 28 U.S.C. § 2631(i) ("Any civil action of which the Court of International Trade has jurisdiction . . . may be commenced in the court by any person adversely affected or aggrieved by agency action within the meaning of Section 702 of Title 5.”).

TIMELINESS

12. An action under 28 U.S.C. § 1581(i) must be commenced within two years after the cause of action first accrues. See 28 U.S.C. § 2636(i).

13. Plaintiffs contest action taken by Defendants that resulted in List 3 and List 4 and the subsequent imposition of duties on Plaintiffs. Plaintiffs’ cause of action with respect to List 3 accrued when it paid List 3 duties on its entries. Pursuant to the USTR’s published List 3 Notice, September 24, 2018 was the first day on which duties could have been levied on goods included on List 3. See List 3 Notice. Plaintiffs had entries subject to List 3 on or after March 8, 2019, and the instant action was filed within two years of the date on which Plaintiffs paid the List 3 duties on those entries.

14. Plaintiffs’ cause of action with respect to List 4A accrued, at the earliest, upon USTR’s publication of the notice imposing the List 4A duties on August 20, 2019. See List 4 Notice. In the alternative, Plaintiffs’ cause of action with respect to List 4A accrued when it paid List 4A duties on its entries.

15. Accordingly, this action is timely, as Plaintiffs commenced this action “in accordance with the rules of the court within two years after the cause of action first accrue[d].” 28 U.S.C. § 2636(i).

RELEVANT LAW

16. Section 301(b) of the Trade Act authorizes USTR to investigate whether “an act, policy, or practice of a foreign country is unreasonable or discriminatory and burdens or restricts United States commerce.” 19 U.S.C. § 2411(b).

17. If USTR’s finding is affirmative, Section 301(c)(1)(B) permits USTR to impose special duties on imports from the foreign country subject to investigation. Id. § 2411(c)(1)(B). Section 304(a)(2)(B) requires USTR to determine whether to impose import restrictions in light of any affirmative determination within “12 months after the date on which the investigation is initiated.” Id. § 2414(a)(2)(B). The Trade Act does not authorize USTR to increase or expand duties imposed under Section 301(b) outside of the 12-month time limit.

18. In relevant part, Section 307(a)(1) of the Trade Act permits USTR to “modify or terminate” the action taken pursuant to Section 301(b) where “the burden or restriction on United States commerce . . . of the acts, policies, and practices, that are the subject of such action has increased or decreased,” or where the action “is no longer appropriate.” Id. § 2417(a)(1)(B), (C).

19. Before modifying any action pursuant to Section 307, however, USTR must, inter alia, “provide opportunity for the presentation of views” of interested parties “affected by the proposed modification . . . concerning the effects of the modification . . . and whether any modification . . . of the action is appropriate.” Id. § 2417(a)(2). Modification, “as applied to any duty or other import restriction, includes the elimination of any duty or other import restriction.” 19 U.S.C. § 2481(6).

20. The authority granted by Section 307 to modify an action taken under Section 301(b) does not authorize USTR to impose entirely new duties. Reading USTR’s modification authority in Section 307(a) as a license to impose entirely new duties on previously unaffected goods outside of the 12-month time limit envisioned in Section 304(a)(2)(B), particularly in response to acts, policies, or practices other than those subject to the original action, would create an unintended and unauthorized loophole allowing USTR to circumvent the carefully calibrated, procedurally intricate process that Congress required for imposing duties pursuant to Section 301(b).

21. When Congress intended to grant USTR the authority to include additional goods subject to an action taken pursuant to Section 301 after duties were imposed, it said so explicitly. For example, in the context of actions taken under Section 301(a), Congress referred to “taking further” action, or revising the action to “affect other goods” —not to “modifying” the action. See 19 U.S.C. § 2416(b)(1) (“the Trade Representative shall determine what further action the Trade representative shall take under section 2411(a) of this title. For purposes of Section 2411 of this title, any such determination shall be treated as a determination made under section 2414(a)(1) of this title.”); see also id. § 2416(b)(2)(B) (where a country fails to implement “the recommendation made pursuant to a dispute settlement proceeding under the World Trade Organization, the Trade Representative shall periodically revise the list or action to affect other goods” of that country.). This is not the case in Section 307.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

Initial Investigation and List 1 and 2 Duties

22. On August 14, 2017, then-President Trump directed USTR to consider initiating an investigation pursuant to Section 301(b) of the Trade Act concerning China’s laws, policies, practices and actions related to intellectual property, innovation, and technology. See Addressing

China's Laws, Policies, Practices, and Actions Related to Intellectual Property, Innovation, and Technology, 82 Fed. Reg. 39,007 (Aug. 17, 2017).

23. USTR initiated the investigation into Chinese technology transfer and intellectual property practices on August 18, 2017. See Initiation of Section 301 Investigation; Hearing; and Request for Public Comments: China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 82 Fed. Reg. 40,213 (Aug. 24, 2017).

24. On March 22, 2018, USTR released its report announcing the results of its investigation. See Office of the U.S. Trade Representative, Findings of the Investigation into China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation Under Section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 (Mar. 22, 2018).<sup>2</sup> The report concluded that the investigated practices of the Chinese government are unreasonable and discriminatory and burden or restrict U.S. commerce. See id. at 47.

25. On March 22, 2018, USTR also published a "Fact Sheet" stating that "[a]n interagency team of subject matter experts and economists' estimates that China's policies result in harm to the U.S. economy of at least $50 billion per year." Office of the U.S. Trade Representative, Section 301 Fact Sheet (Mar. 22, 2018).<sup>3</sup> The Fact Sheet stated that USTR would "propose additional tariffs" of 25 percent ad valorem "on certain products of China, with an annual trade value commensurate with the harm caused to the U.S. economy resulting from China's unfair policies." Id.

<sup>3</sup> USTR's Fact sheet is available at <https://ustr.gov/about-us/policy-offices/press-office/fact-sheets/2018/march/Section-301-fact-sheet>.

26. On April 6, 2018, USTR published a Notice of Determination and Request for Public Comment Concerning Proposed Determination of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 83 Fed. Reg. 14,906 (April 6, 2018). In the notice, USTR identified a list of products with a total value of approximately $50 billion on which it proposed to impose additional duties and set a period for comment and a public hearing on the proposed list. See id. USTR stated that “[t]he value of the list is approximately $50 billion in terms of estimated annual trade revenue value for calendar year 2018. This level is appropriate both in light of the estimated harm to the U.S. economy, and to obtain elimination of China’s harmful acts, policies, and practices.” Id. at 14,907.

27. After taking comment from interested parties, on June 20, 2018, USTR published Notice of Action and Request for Public Comment Concerning Proposed Determination of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 83 Fed. Reg. 28,710 (June 20, 2018), imposing an additional 25 percent ad valorem duty on approximately $34 billion in listed imports from China, which USTR refers to as “List 1” duties. USTR stated that it had removed approximately $16 billion worth of imports from its initially proposed list in response to input from the public during the notice-and-comment process. See id. at 28,712. In light of the removal of certain products from the first proposed list, USTR proposed an additional list of $16 billion in imports, stating that “[i]ncluding these tariff subheadings in the Section 301 action would maintain the effectiveness of a $50 billion trade action.” Id.

28. On August 16, 2018, USTR published Notice of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 83 Fed. Reg. 40,823-24 (Aug. 16, 2018), imposing an additional 25 percent ad valorem duty on approximately $16 billion in imports from China. USTR refers to these as “List 2” duties. The August 16, 2018 notice reiterated that the List 2 duties would “maintain the effectiveness of a $50 billion trade action.” Id.

List 3 Duties

29. In response to the List 1 and List 2 duties, China announced retaliatory duties on imports of U.S. products. See U.S. Trade Representative, Statement by U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer on Section 301 Action (July 10, 2018) (“Lighthizer July 10, 2018 Statement”).<sup>4</sup>

30. In response to China’s retaliation, USTR proposed on July 17, 2018, to take “supplemental action,” to impose duties of 10 percent ad valorem on approximately $200 billion in additional Chinese-origin products. Request for Comments Concerning Proposed Modification of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 83 Fed. Reg. 33,608, 33,609 (July 17, 2018); USTR set dates for public comment, a public hearing, and post-hearing rebuttal comments. See Lighthizer July 10, 2018 Statement.

31. Subsequently, USTR proposed “raising the level of the additional duty in the proposed supplemental action from 10 percent to 25 percent.” Extension of Public Comment Period Concerning Proposed Modification of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 83

<sup>4</sup> Ambassador Lighthizer’s July 10, 2018 statement is available at <https://ustr.gov/about-us/policy-offices/press-office/press-releases/2018/july/statement-us-trade-representative>.

Fed. Reg. 38,760 (Aug. 7, 2018). USTR also set new dates for the public hearing and changed the comment deadlines to make affirmative and rebuttal comments due on the same day. See id. At the public hearing, held from August 20, 2018, through August 27, 2018, parties were limited to only five minutes of testimony. Approximately 350 witnesses appeared at the hearing, and USTR received over 6,000 comments from the public.

32. On September 17, 2018 President Trump announced that he had directed USTR to impose 10 percent additional duties on $200 billion of imports from China. See The White House, Statement from the President (Sept. 17, 2018).<sup>5</sup> President Trump claimed that the additional duties were tied to “China’s decision to “impose new tariffs in an effort to hurt the United States economy,” and acknowledged that “[w]e are taking this action today as a result of the Section 301 process that the USTR has been leading for more than 12 months.” Id. (emphasis supplied).

33. USTR published the final list of the affected products subject to the additional duties covering $200 billion in imports on September 21, 2018, commonly referred to as List 3. See List 3 Notice, 83 Fed. Reg. at 47,974. USTR’s notice was issued more than 12 months after the initiation of the investigation on August 24, 2017. USTR did not provide any substantive analysis of any of the more than 6,000 comments that it received or any of the testimony provided by more than 350 witnesses, beyond stating that it had made certain adjustments to List 3. USTR also provided no substantive response to parties’ comments regarding the adverse effects of the proposed modification, nor did it provide any substantive explanation for rejecting parties' views that the proposed modification was inappropriate. See id.

34. In the List 3 Notice, USTR claimed that "China's unfair acts, policies, and practices include not just its technology transfer and IP policies referenced in the notice of initiation in the investigation, but also China's subsequent defensive actions taken to maintain those unfair acts, policies, and practices as determined in that investigation." Id. Therefore, in the List 3 Notice, USTR conceded that it imposed additional duties based, at least in part, on "unfair acts, policies, and practices" not subject to the underlying original investigation. USTR provided no explanation as to how the List 3 duties were commensurate with these additional alleged unfair acts, policies, and practices, or how the statute conferred USTR with the authority to "modify" the Section 301(b) action based on acts, policies, and practices not identified or addressed in the original investigation.

35. In contrast to the analysis provided in the List 1 and List 2 Notices, USTR provided no qualitative or quantitative analysis in the List 3 Notice demonstrating that its imposition of the List 3 duties was commensurate with the alleged "increased burden" on U.S. Commerce. USTR also stated, in a conclusory manner, that Chinese retaliation made the existing action no longer "appropriate." Id. However, USTR did not provide any substantive analysis as to how the List 3 duties on an additional $200 billion in imports would render the purported "modification" to the measure "appropriate."

36. On May 9, 2019, USTR announced that it would increase the tariff rate applicable to List 3 goods from 10 percent to 25 percent. See Notice of Modification of Section 301 Action: China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and

Innovation, 84 Fed. Reg. 20,459 (May 9, 2019). The notice cited China’s decision to “retreat from specific commitments agreed to in earlier rounds” of negotiations as the basis for the increase in the duty rate. Id. USTR did not seek public comment on the rate increase, and failed to provide any explanation or analysis that the increased duties were commensurate with or otherwise appropriate as a response to the “unfair acts, policies, and practices” identified in the underlying USTR investigation. Id.

List 4 Duties

37. On May 17, 2019, USTR announced its intention to proceed with the implementation on a fourth list of Section 301 duties on $300 billion in additional products. See Request for Comments Concerning Proposed Modification of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 84 Fed. Reg. 22,564 (May 17, 2019). USTR claimed that it was proposing to impose the List 4 duties “[i]n light of China’s failure to meaningfully address the acts, policies, and practices that are subject to this investigation and its response to the current action being taken in this investigation,” even though the investigation had concluded on March 28, 2018, well over a year prior to the notice. Id. USTR set a public hearing and invited comments on the proposed List 4 duties. See id.

38. At the public hearing, held from June 17, 2019, through June 25, 2019, parties again were limited to only five minutes of testimony. Hundreds of witnesses, including trade associations collectively representing multiple interested parties, appeared at the hearing, and USTR received over 3,000 comments from the public.

39. On August 20, 2019, USTR announced that it would implement duties of 10 percent ad valorem on approximately $300 billion in List 4 goods in two phases, i.e., “List 4A and List 4B.” List 4 Notice, 84 Fed. Reg. at 43,304. For List 4A, USTR imposed ad valorem duties of 10 percent on approximately $120 billion of imports, effective September 1, 2019. See id. List 4B, to become effective on December 15, 2019, would impose duties of 10 percent ad valorem on the remaining $180 billion worth of imports. See id. The August 20, 2019 List 4 Notice was published nearly two years after the initiation of the investigation on August 24, 2017. USTR provided no substantive analysis of parties’ comments or hearing testimony submitted in opposition to imposition of the List 4 duties.

40. USTR stated that its authority pursuant to Section 301 of the Trade Act includes the authority “to modify the action being taken in an investigation,” if USTR determines that “[t]he burden or restriction on United States commerce of the acts, policies, and practices, that are the subject of the action has increased or decreased.” Id. at 43,304. USTR claimed that “[t]he burden or restriction on United States commerce of the acts, policies, and practices that are the subject of the Section 301 action continues to increase.” Id. However, USTR provided no substantive analysis as to the extent of the alleged increase of the burden, or whether the 10 percent ad valorem duties on $300 billion in additional goods was proportional to the alleged increase. USTR also provided no explanation as to how the statute conferred on USTR the authority to “modify” the Section 301(b) action based on acts, policies, and practices not identified or addressed in the original investigation.

41. Instead, as it did in the List 3 Notice, USTR claimed in the List 4 Notice that “China’s unfair acts, policies, and practices include not just its technology transfer and IP policies referenced in the notice of initiation in the investigation, but also China’s subsequent defensive actions taken to maintain those unfair acts, policies, and practices as determined in that investigation.” Id. USTR also pointed to China’s alleged failure to meet commitments made during trade negotiations, and alleged devaluation of the Chinese yuan. See id. USTR provided no explanation as to how the List 4 duties were commensurate with these additional alleged unfair acts, policies, and practices.

42. On August 30, 2019, USTR announced that it would increase the tariff rate applicable to List 4A and List 4B goods from 10 percent to 15 percent. See Notice of Modification of Section 301 Action: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 84 Fed. Reg. 45,821 (Aug. 30, 2019). USTR stated in the August 30 notice that it was increasing the rate of duty because China responded to USTR’s announcement of the List 4 duties by imposing additional retaliatory duties on U.S. imports. See id. USTR also pointed to China’s alleged failure to honor commitments made during negotiations, and alleged devaluation of its currency. See id.

43. On December 18, 2019, USTR published a notice in the Federal Register stating that it would “suspend indefinitely the imposition of additional duties of 15 percent on products of China covered by” List 4B. Notice of Modification of Section 301 Action: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 84 Fed. Reg. 69,447 (Dec. 18, 2019). Imposition of tariffs from List 4B remains suspended as of the date of filing of this Complaint.

44. On January 22, 2020, USTR reduced the duties applicable to List 4A goods from 15 percent to 7.5 percent. See Notice of Modification of Section 301 Action: China’s Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation, 85

Fed. Reg. 3,741 (Jan. 22, 2020). The 7.5 percent duties applicable to List 4A remain in effect as of the date of filing of this Complaint.

STATEMENT OF CLAIMS

COUNT I: DECLARATORY JUDGMENT

45. Paragraphs 1 through 44 of this Complaint are incorporated herein by reference.

46. The Court may “declare the rights and other legal relations of any interested party seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought.” 28 U.S.C. § 2201(a).

47. USTR failed to articulate a rational connection between the imposition of the Section 301 duties on Chinese products covered by List 3 and List 4A and the acts or policies found in its report to “burden or restrict” U.S. commerce, as required by 19 U.S.C. § 2411(b)(1).

48. USTR failed to take action to impose duties on List 3 and List 4 products from China within the 12-month period required by 19 U.S.C. § 2414(a)(1)(B) and (2)(B).

49. USTR failed to articulate any basis for its finding that the burden on U.S. commerce from the investigated unfair policies or practices increased as a result of China’s reaction to the Section 301 tariffs. USTR may not increase the duties assessed in furtherance of Section 301(b) for reasons other than the acts, policies, or practices that were found to burden U.S. commerce in the underlying investigation. Nor may USTR impose duties that are significantly disproportionate to the alleged burdens on U.S. commerce on which those duties are based, as USTR has done under List 3 and List 4.

50. Section 301(b) actions may be modified when no longer appropriate. See 19 U.S.C. § 2417(a)(1)(C). But this authorization does not permit USTR to increase an existing remedy action. Rather, the statute provides authority only to decrease, remove, or suspend the action. See 19 U.S.C. § 2481(6). Unless the burden of the acts, policies, and practices that were the subject of the original investigation have been found to have increased (which they have not), the statute provides authority only to decrease or terminate the trade action. See 19 U.S.C. § 2417.<sup>6</sup>

51. USTR’s attempt to assert its modification authority as a basis to impose new duties on additional goods is thus contrary to the statute.

52. Plaintiffs are, therefore, entitled to a declaratory judgment that the duties imposed on products of China covered by List 3 and List 4A are contrary to law and void ab initio.

COUNT II: APA VIOLATION

53. Paragraphs 1 through 52 of this Complaint are incorporated herein by reference.

54. The Administrative Procedure Act provides, in relevant part, that this Court invalidate any final agency action that is “arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law,” “in excess of statutory . . . authority,” or without observance of procedure required by law.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), (C), (D).

<sup>6</sup> The modification authority in 19 U.S.C. § 2417(a)(1)(A) refers to conditions in § 2411(a)(2), which are conditions under which tariff action is not required. Likewise, 19 U.S.C. § 2417(c) references only circumstances appropriate for ending trade actions. Pursuant to 19 U.S.C. § 2481(6), “modification, as applied to any duty or other import restriction,” explicitly includes “the elimination of any duty or other import restriction”; no reference is made to expanding the action.

55. USTR's imposition of List 3 and List 4 duties more than 12 months after the initiation of the investigation is in excess of statutory authority and fails to observe procedure required by law.

56. USTR's imposition of List 3 and List 4 duties—for reasons unrelated to China's acts, policies, and practices related to technology transfer, intellectual property, and innovation as identified in the underlying investigation, and to an extent significantly disproportionate to the alleged burdens on U.S. commerce on which those duties are based—is in excess of statutory authority and is arbitrary, capricious, and an abuse of discretion.

57. USTR's imposition of List 3 and List 4 duties was arbitrary and capricious because USTR did not provide meaningful opportunity to comment, failed to consider relevant factors when making its decision, and failed to draw a rational connection between the facts found and the choices made.

REQUEST FOR RELIEF

For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court:

1. Declare the imposition and collection of List 3 and List 4A duties to be contrary to law and, therefore, void ab initio;
2. Vacate the List 3 and List 4A actions;
3. Order Defendants to refund, with interest as provided by law, all duties paid by Plaintiffs in accordance with List 3 and List 4A;
4. Permanently enjoin Defendants from collecting further duties on importations by Plaintiffs pursuant to List 3 and List 4A;

5. Grant such other relief as the Court may deem just and proper.

Respectfully submitted,
